

ACTUARIAL PROFESSIONALISM SEMINAR IN VILNIUS

On behalf of Lithuanian Actuaries Society (Lietuvos Aktuarių Draugija) we would like to invite you to attend Actuarial Professionalism full-day seminar which will take place on the 12th of May 2015 in Vilnius.

Promoting and maintaining a high standard of actuarial practice is becoming more and more relevant. This seminar is intended to highlight the relevance of actuarial professionalism and to discuss various issues related to practical application of the Code of Conduct. Issues like pressure from employer/directors, effective communication, conflict of interest, ensuring competence and care when working in a small team will be discussed during the seminar. The optional formal assessment will be held at the end of seminar.

The seminar will be delivered by the representative of the Institute and Faculty of Actuaries Tony Hewitt:

- Tony Hewitt is an actuary with 35 years' experience solving business issues for pension, social security and health organisations.
- He read Economics at Cambridge University. He was a consulting actuary and partner of Bacon & Woodrow for over 25 years.
- Tony spent the last 6 years teaching trainee actuaries at Imperial College Business School, focusing on developing the critical thinking skills needed to tackle complex problems faced by actuaries.
- He is a keen supporter of the UK actuarial profession, helping to develop courses for actuaries and trainee actuaries in solving business issues that involve ethical dilemmas.

The full agenda is provided in the second page.

The seminar is free of charge for the members of Lithuanian Actuaries Society. For other participants fee of 30 EUR will apply. Your response on participation in the seminar is welcome by the 7th of May (by email lina.peciuliauskaite@swedbank.lt). Participant fee (if applicable) should be transferred to the account LT497300010090396093 at AB Swedbank by that date.
